MODERN DAY SLAVERY

In the 21st century, the term „slavery“ might evoke images of the past, but unfortunately, it is still a harsh reality for many around the world. Modern-day slavery takes on various forms, hidden in the shadows of our globalized society.

Global Supply Chains:

Our interconnected world means that the products we use daily may have ties to modern-day slavery. Many industries unknowingly use exploitation through complex supply chains. As consumers, being aware of the origins of the products we purchase can contribute to breaking these chains of exploitation.

Understanding the Causes:

To address the issue of modern-day slavery, it's essential to understand the root causes. Poverty, lack of education, and political instability often create environments where exploitation can thrive. By understanding these underlying factors, we can work towards addressing them at their roots.

Awareness:

Taking a stand against modern-day slavery involves raising awareness. High school students can engage in protests, whether it's organizing awareness campaigns, participating in discussions, or spreading information on social media. Every voice matters in shining a light on this global issue.

Germany trip report

On November 29, our school went on an adventure to Germany. The bus left early in the morning and we got to Berlin at 10 AM. First we went for a quick walk in the footsteps of the Berlin Wall and reached Potsdamer Platz, where we parted ways and had lunch.

After lunch it was time to explore the city further. We saw the Memorial to the Murdered Jews of Europe, then the monument of the famous Brandenburg Gate and the Reichstag building. After a lot of sightseeing we reached Alexanderplatz where we had 3 hours to go and explore the city by ourselves.

In the evening our bus picked us up again and took us to the outskirts of Berlin to our hotel. We spent the night there, had a delicious buffet breakfast in the morning and set off again by bus, this time to the famous Dresden.

First we had a tour of the Transparent Factory, which is a Volkswagen marketing project. We saw how electric cars are assembled and received a detailed lecture on sustainability.

Some of us even had the whole tour in English!

Then we went to see the Dresden Frauenkirche together, where we were again dismissed for 4 hours and we each went to explore the city on our own. Some of us went to the Christmas markets which are famous in Dresden, some went shopping or just walked around the beautiful city.

Unfortunately, our bus picked us up again around 7 PM and we started our journey back to Prague.
