Best memes of 2024

2024 was another year that gave us plenty of hilarious memes

Here are some of the best:

Knee surgery meme

This meme features blue tinted Grinch with the text „That feeling when knee surgery is tomorrow“. The point of this meme is that it has no point and is out of context.

Imagine If Ninja Got a Low Taper Fade" is a viral audio clip from hyperpop artist ericdoa's freestyle on Twitch in January 2024. The clip, referencing streamer Ninja, went viral on TikTok after being reposted to the ericdoaclips page, sparking memes and photoshops of Ninja with a low taper fade.

"English or Spanish"

This was a very popular question that people got asked on the street. The premise was whichever language they answered you would tell them in the language that they chose "First one to move is gay." This trend went extremely viral and tons of memes were inspired from it.

Hawk Tuah

This fine lady was asked what is one move that makes a man go crazy in bed "OOOh you gotta give him that Hawk tuah" she replied. This clip went incredibly viral and so many memes came from it. Afterwards this wonderful lady was even able to establish her own podcast named Talk Tuah.

The locked-in alien meme was the last meme that boomed in 2024. The whole purpose of this futuristic-looking meme is that you, unexpectedly, start to focus on a specific action. For example, the bizarre animation in the meme is the main reason why it got so popular out of nowhere.

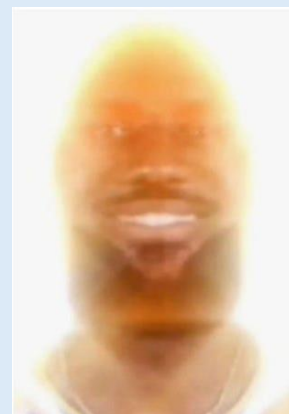

Yusuf Dikec became famous for his exceptionally unbothered performance in the 2024 Olympics, where he took the silver medal back home to Turkey. With his “non-professional” stance, he became an internet sensation overnight, and clips of other people mimicking his pose became trendy.

So here we go. This was the weirdest and most meaningless meme of 2024. The Oi oi oi worm hit the streets around summertime, where its absurdity took over the internet for about two weeks until people realized how annoying it actually was. There is nothing more to say about this atrocity.

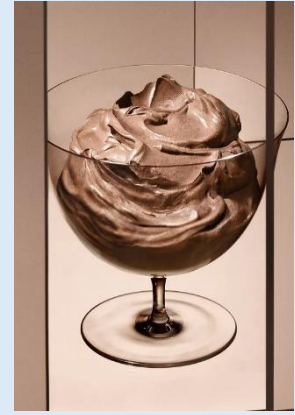

“You are my sunshine, my only sunshine.” In correlation with LeBron’s domination in the NBA, his meme legacy isn’t shabby either. This time, he hit us with the sunshine meme, where his fandom, almost fanatics, made him seem like a sweetheart and a symbol of purity. The lore consisted of Evil LeBron and Jamaican LeBron too, but we will not be diving into that.

The Blackbeard writing meme has been around for the whole of 2024, in fact, to some extent, it's still used to this day. The term connected to this meme is “cooking,” where the individual has written a diabolical piece of writing, and people react to it with this picture of Blackbeard.

NEW YEAR NEW ME

THE COLOR OF THE YEAR

What is Mocha Mousse?

For 2025, the Pantone Color Institute selected PANTONE 17-1230 Mocha Mousse, a warming, brown color overflowing with richness. It nurtures us with its suggestion of the delectable qualities of chocolate and coffee, answering our desire for comfort.

BABA VANGA'S PREDICTIONS FOR 2025

Baba Vanga was born in Macedonia in 1911 and died in 1996. It is believed she was injured after a tornado hit her village when she was just 12, throwing her into the air and flinging dust into her eyes. Following the alleged event, she slowly went blind and began experiencing visions. She is known for making predictions for what will happen in the future. For example, she predicted 9/11, the Chernobyl nuclear catastrophe, the rise of Barack Obama and Donald Trump and even her own death. But she also forecasted many things that didn't come true, such as World War that was supposed to start in November 2010 and end in October 2014 and that Europe would be almost deserted in 2016.

A DEVASTATING WAR IN EUROPE

The event that will spark humanity's demise will be an unspecified conflict in Europe which will decimate the continent's population.

THE RISE OF RUSSIA'S INFLUENCE

Baba Vanga predicted that Vladimir Putin will be re-elected as Russia's leader, solidifying the country's dominance and continuing to shape the geopolitical landscape.

NATURAL DISASTERS

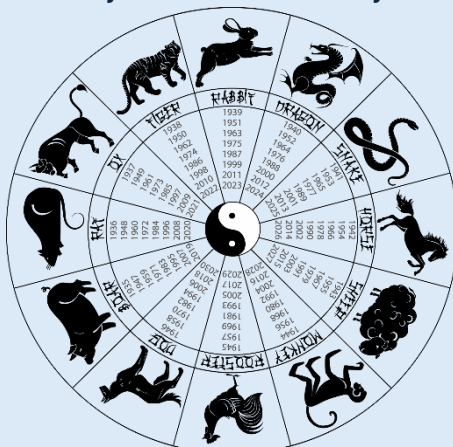

2025 is expected to witness catastrophic natural events, including the eruption of dormant volcanoes. Massive floods will also wreak chaos, and the oracle specifically mentioned an earthquake along the US west coast. These events will result in loss of life as well as mass displacement.

SCIENTIFIC BREAKTHROUGHS

Because it can't be all disastrous, Baba Vanga also foretold that scientists will make a breakthrough when it comes to lab-grown organs, which will revolutionise transplants. Additionally, she anticipated advancements in cancer treatment in 2025 – possibly even a cure.

CHINESE NEW YEAR 2025

The date of Chinese New Year changes every year, but it always falls between January 21st and February 20th and every year starts with a new moon day, usually the second after the winter solstice. Chinese New Year 2025 is a Year of the Snake, starting from January 29th, 2025, and lasting until February 16th, 2026. This holiday is a time for family reunions, special food, music, and celebrations that last for several days. It is also a time to honour their ancestors and share good wishes for the new year.

A CALENDAR OF NEW YEAR CELEBRATIONS AROUND THE WORLD

The celebration of the New Year is a long-standing tradition worldwide, often accompanied by food, fireworks, and moments of reflection with loved ones. While these qualities are common, the way the New Year is observed varies across different calendars, religions, and cultures.

Gregorian New Year

1 January 2025

New Year's Day marks the first day of the Gregorian calendar, something we've become familiar with around the world. While 25 March (named after the Roman god of war) was traditionally when New Year would be celebrated, this shifted during Roman times to January (more fittingly named after the Roman god of all beginnings). This New Year stems from Christianity and largely filtered its way around the world with many places taking on the Gregorian calendar. While making resolutions for new beginnings is customary, in more recent years New Year's Eve has taken more of a centre stage with firework displays and parties of friends and family to see in the New Year. New York's Times Square is a hugely popular venue for people to travel to for the occasion, with more than one million people watching to see the ball drop.

Songkran

13-15 April 2025

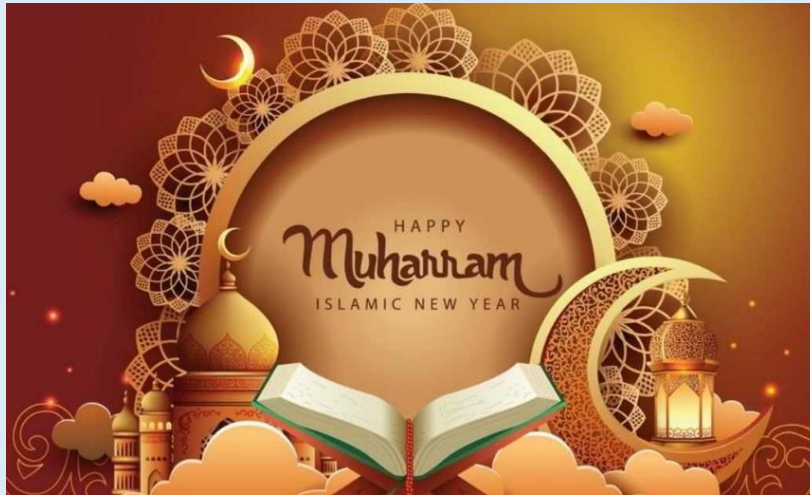

Meaning "to move" or "movement" in Sanskrit, Songkran works with the solar calendar, marking the movement of the sun from Pisces to Aries in the zodiac. Songkran is celebrated across Thailand, with customs varying depending on the region of the country. It's one of the most important events in the Buddhist calendar, with water being at its centre—Songkran is considered to be spiritually purifying and to wash away bad luck from the previous year. Younger people will visit older generations of their family during New Year to pour water over the elders' hands and feet as a sign of respect, but a more commercial side of the festival sees people (including plenty of tourists) throwing water over each other in the streets, often using water guns.

Muharram

26-27 June 2025

Muharram marks the first month of the Islamic calendar, with the beginning of the year being celebrated on the 10th day of the month (Day of Ashura). The traditions and rituals vary for the two major sects of Islam, Shia and Sunni, though the main emphasis for most is remembrance, self-reflection and expressing gratitude. Many people around the globe celebrate the period by visiting family, attending prayer sessions at mosques and fasting on or around the Day of Ashura. This New Year is more a period of reflection and mourning—Muharram means "forbidden," with fighting being prohibited during this month.

Diwali

20 October 2025

A Hindu lunar celebration, Diwali is a five-day Festival of Lights centred around starting afresh. The dates change yearly depending on the Hindu calendar, usually falling between mid-October and mid-November, taking place on Amavasya (New Moon), the darkest night in the Hindu calendar. There are differing customs depending on where it's being celebrated, with various gods prayed to, but the theme of light continues throughout. People clean and decorate their homes to welcome in Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth, with entry ways of coloured sand, rice paste and flowers. It's a time for visiting neighbours and family, with Diwali being celebrated by praying to Lakshmi, sitting down for a meal and ending with fireworks.

Golden Globes

As we all know, Golden Globes is an award winning event that happens annually in the first week of January. So, to not make it boring, let me tell you some facts about this years Golden Globes, instead of the typical background and apparent things like always.

The year 2024 has been a bright year for original and thought provoking movies. Take The Substance or Anora for instance. The Substance tells us a story about how draining the film industry can be for actresses, especially those that have been in the industry for a long time. How they „lose their worth“ after getting to a certain age and that they are not needed in films anymore, at least not without plastic surgery. For most women, the meaning behind the movie is obvious, but for men, the point of this movie just seems to fly over their head.

On the other hand, Anora is a movie about life of a stripper and a russian spoiled kid „falling in love“. Being a stripper is obviously still considered a taboo, therefore the movie might be controversial to some. It is an explicit movie with a lot of nudity, but it is not only about nudity and sex work, it is also about the life of the stripper and who she is besides her work.

Honorable mention would be Babygirl, starring Nicole Kidman and Harris Dickinson. To make it short but also interesting, it is a movie about two people exploring their sexuality, the awkwardness around it and also there is a scene of them two at a rave. Probably do not watch it with your parents, but also who am I to tell you how to watch a movie.

*fyi, I wanted to mention The Brutalist as well, but due to the fact that the movie was edited with AI and especially the performance of main actors, I decided not to.
